An award-winning residential development in South London has welcomed a top-rated Italian restaurant.

Carluccio's is the newest addition to NEO Bankside's restaurant and retail establishments.

It has moved into a 4,420 sq ft unit in Pavilion A of the development, directly opposite Tate Modern.

NEO Bankside, jointly developed by Native Land and Grosvenor and designed by Rogers Stirk Harbour + Partners, has fast become one of London's most sought-after residential developments, it is reported.

Carluccio's is one of a number of restaurant and retail units within the award-winning development. It joins Prescott & Conran-owned Cafe Albion, situated in Pavilion B of NEO Bankside.

James Henderson, development director at Native Land, said: "Carluccio's is a welcome addition to NEO Bankside that will enhance the range of food and beverage available, not only to NEO Bankside residents but to many thousands of people that visit the Bankside area each day."

Carluccio's chairman Simon Kossoff said: "NEO Bankside is positioned in a thriving area and we're thrilled to have opened Carluccio's within the development.

"Surrounded by businesses, homes and visitor attractions, it is the perfect location to enjoy modern Italian all-day dining.

"Our deli and food shop has a wide range of fresh produce and products to take home, which lends us to the needs of our neighbours. We've had a very warm welcome."
